POPULAR LOCAL AUTHOR REVEALS WINNING FORMULA FOR WRITING AND PUBLISHING

Jonathan Maberry's critically acclaimed NOVEL IN NINE MONTHS™ class hits Philadelphia this February

Note: Two top NYC agents will be scouting classes!

9 January, 2006 (Philadelphia, PA) – For writers who seek to transform their raw ideas into polished (and marketable) novels, Jonathan Maberry is a mentor come true. Maberry's increasingly popular writing-intensive program has helped countless writers conquer the printed page and produce novels that are attractive to publishers, agents, and readers alike.

But, according to his students, Jonathan Maberry imparts far more than useful (insider) publishing knowledge. His teaching method inspires and organizes writers to produce finished material far more quickly and efficiently than ever before in their writing career. Former student, Mark LeBeau a clinical psychologist, says "The Novel in 9 Months class was amazing. I actually finished a 350 page novel in seven months and am well on my way to revising it for submission. Jonathan's class made each step so easy to grasp."

Another student, internationally renowned nutrition author Sharon Gerdes enthusiastically agrees. "Transitioning from non-fiction from fiction is not easy. I was stuck and floundering. After the first session of "Write Your Novel in Nine Months," I was motivated and on task. Jonathan is laying out a roadmap for our group of budding novelists. He is inspirational and demanding, the perfect taskmaster. Under his guidance, my rough idea for a novel is off and running."

Jonathan Maberry has been a professional writer for nearly thirty years and is the author of twelve nonfiction books, several novels (including Tales from the Fire Zone and Ghost Road Blues – due in June of 2006 by Pinnacle Books). He has also sold more than 900 articles on subjects including martial arts, safety awareness, bartending, psychology, medicine, health, relationships, parenting, education, film, literature, folklore, and the occult.

Jonathan is the former Executive Director of the Writers Room of Bucks County and is the Executive Editor of the Wild River Review, a literary online magazine (www.wildriverreview.com). Jonathan is a Board Member of the Philadelphia Writers Conference, and a Mentor for the Horror Writers Association. He is frequent workshop leader for writers' conferences (University of Pennsylvania, Greater Lehigh Valley Writers Conference, PennWriters, etc.). Jonathan is also a consultant for writers needing career advice or project management.

Maberry's 9-month course (which runs from February through October at Robins Bookstore in Philadelphia) covers every aspect of writing and developing a novel, including creating real characters, developing workable story ideas, writing and finishing first drafts as well as identifying markets, searching for agents and publishers, deciphering contracts and arranging publicity. Participants meet once a month with the instructor and once a month in an exclusive peer critique group. Two top NYC agents -one literary and one film-- will be scouting the finished books for potential clients!
